More than a route. A way into the mountains.

Discover Kosovo, Montenegro and Albania on a self-guided Peaks of the Balkans journey. This long mountain trail threads remote high country, climbing toward 2,300 m on shepherd paths that once sat behind closed borders—and are now open to hikers from around the world.

The classic circuit covers roughly 200 km through the Accursed Mountains. Your itinerary typically begins in Albania, though start and finish points can be adjusted when you book.

Terrain swings from gentler valley walking to moderate+ mountain days. Solid fitness and proper trekking equipment are essential. Solo travellers, pairs and groups up to twelve are welcome; we can shorten or extend the route from about five to fourteen hiking days on request.

Questions before you book.

Who is self-guided for?

Independent hikers who are comfortable navigating with GPX files and still want lodging, meals, border paperwork and phone support organised. You walk without a guide on trail, but our local team stays reachable.

Can the itinerary be customised?

Yes. We can reshape the classic route from roughly five to fourteen hiking days, adjust start and end points, and add 4x4 links, luggage moves or airport transfers (Tirana, Podgorica and more).

What group sizes work?

From a solo traveller or pair up to twelve people. Support stays available throughout.

Is luggage moved for me?

Luggage transport is not in the standard self-guided price. Ask when booking if you want bag transfers added.

How do I get help on the trail?

You receive GPX tracks plus nonstop phone and local staff support along the Peaks of the Balkans corridor. Call or WhatsApp +383 49 601 007.

What about visas and money?

Most nationalities need no visa for Albania or Kosovo; check Montenegro separately. Euros work widely; Albanian lek is mainly for Albania itself.
